2018

Magnitogorsk State Technical University was founded in 1934. Today the University seeks students with a strong academic record and a wide range of talents, ambitions, backgrounds and experiences. We weigh an applicant's personal qualities along with academic potential and achievement. Teachers' recommendations and extracurricular activities also play a role in the admission process.

In the Institute for the Humanities, there is an English Department which is famous for its high academic standards. There you can have every opportunity to receive intensive language training and acquire a near-native competence in English.

Firstly, the staff of the English Department encourages imagination and independence of mind. In addition to compulsory courses, students choose some optional ones from the large number of options available. Our students graduate with skills and knowledge in various subject areas.

Secondly, a well-stocked library is equipped with a wide range of literature to meet the needs of students and to support the research.

Furthermore, the University provides accommodation for young people from other regions and countries. It also awards financial assistance to students for scholastic achievement.

Moreover, the University finances a variety of entertainment programmes and leisure activities. If you visit the campus, you will be able to discover for yourselves what the University is all about, meet our students and faculty, and sense our spirit of community.

To sum up, the English department has plenty to offer. So, make it your choice and you will definitely not be disappointed.
